

PRESS RELEASE

For Immediate Release 23rd August 2013

Witherby Digital: eBooks via the Cloud Server

Witherby Digital launches an online service that can deliver eBooks wherever there is an internet connection to a web-enabled device. The delivery to the Internet is made utilising cloud server computing.

The development of the system was in response to requests from companies, particularly those with 'locked down' computer systems, to make an on-line version of our eBooks available.

Trials allowing online access to eBooks via the Cloud Server have, on a limited basis, been underway since 2012. Following the success of those trials, Witherby Digital is now making its own publications available, adding new titles to the service to meet demand and by consent of copyright holders where appropriate.

Access is on a single user, single year licence basis, the price of which can be obtained on application.
